

Phase Angle of Entrainment: the main scan shows that the gene for phase angle of entrainment is very likely to be located on the 12th chromosome. Additionally, the effect plot shows that mice with the genotype AA have lower phase angles, while mice with the AB and BB genotypes have higher phase angles. Thus, we can assume that having the B gene corresponds to a lower phase angle.